The trailblazing Princess X95 is a ground breaking new yacht in the pleasure marine sector. Its bold new design allows the flybridge and main deck to cover almost the full length of the yacht, delivering expansive spaces on-board.

Scott Bader Crystic® Resins, Gelcoats and Crestomer® Structural Adhesives were used to create the beautiful Princess X95.

Princess Yachts and Scott Bader have worked together for over 55 years to ensure Princess Yachts remain at the forefront of composite technology for their world leading range of super yachts.

The technical team at Scott Bader have worked closely with Princess Yachts throughout their 55 year partnership.

This is based on close collaboration and capturing of ever changing composite requirements as Princess Yachts and the expectations of their customer base develop.

Scott Bader's composite and adhesive products move from the research and development process through to introduction and implementation within Princess Yachts to help continually improve the quality of their mouldings.

Paul Mackenzie
Chief Operating Officer, Princess Yachts

“Scott Bader are an integral partner for Princess Yachts. We value the high quality of the materials supplied and the responsive technical support we receive from the Scott Bader team. Their advice and technical recommendations, based on a detailed understanding of our manufacturing process, helps us to optimise our production lines from a chemistry standpoint whilst maintaining the high level of quality Princess Yachts is renowned for.

Scott Bader, with their unique Commonwealth ownership structure, excellent products and focus on innovation, give us full confidence in both their products and our long-standing relationship “
